I put the tribal contacts on the list serve that were not there already.

I always send Jessica Johnson a individual - her office gets the notification and I am not sure on the trickle down. When I put that together, I will find your email with the tribal contact and include them.

Pete, I presume the tribes are on the "distribution list" for the public notice, as I recall we talked about it last year. If you need email addresses for any of the North Dakota tribes, please let me know.

Also, no word yet on your question about a contact for tribal waters and dewatering permits in North Dakota. I sent a note to Toney Ott (Watersheds) and George Parrish (WQS) and told them you had a lengthy call with an ND DOT staffer who was confused for the reasons you explained.

Toney said she may have gotten a related call from Mitch Sperry with NDDOT related to construction stormwater permits. Toney said she referred him to Stephanie DeJong and Amy Clark with Water Enforcement. On Monday, Amy said she received a voicemail message from him and left one back with him. She's waiting to hear back from him. I'll let you know if I hear anything else.

Thanks. I hope have some fun weekend plans!

Dear Holly:

Public notice went out today. It will take until May 28th to work through the entire system. This is the first notice to kick off the triennial review and we are soliciting comments on the entire standards. These comments and our updates additions changes etc. will be put together and we will have a second notice and public hearing on the proposed changes before going to EPA for approval.

I would estimate late summer to early winter for that second notice

Pete
